<Programme: >

<Project Title: : Involving children and young people in democratic participation procedures>
<Description: Description of expertise related to the topic:
We would like to collaborate with an international consortium of research performers and civil society organisations seeking to serve particular groups (e.g. looked after or refugee children), or different ages (teenagers, older children, young children).

Brief abstract of proposal idea:
Media outlets, political leaders, and children's advocates often encourage the public to view youth as investments in tomorrow, but the question is in what extend youth are contributing to the public good and have a voice in their communities. The aim of this project will be to stimulate active engagement with ideas about why and how to involve children and young people in democratic participation procedures. To provoke such thinking reflection reports and guides will help organisations, seeking to serve children and young people, to develop new ways of working. We will also suggest activities that can be used to encourage practice development and learning.
