Eurisy will organise the Istanbul conference - in collaboration with ESA and TUBITAK (The Scientific and Technological Research Council of Turkey) - as part of its efforts to facilitate partnerships in a variety of fields of space activity, across Europe and with its Mediterranean neighbours.

Turkish and European space and space-related actors interested in making the most of existing mechanisms for collaboration as well as shaping new venues for partnerships are welcome. The Istanbul Conference will provide the forum to discuss ways of working together in areas such as space science, Earth observation research and applications, telecommunications, ground segment engineering and use and others.
